REVIVE MORINGA GROWING

The Chinese government has partnered with the Ugandan government to promote large-scale cultivation of Moringa. Growing of this miracle tree was first promoted by the Ugandan government in 2000 with the aim of exporting the seeds. However, because of limited sensitization, the program did not work out well.

In Uganda Moringa is used for a variety of purposes, including food, medicine and livestock feeds. The leaves and seeds of this crop can be used to treat a range of ailments such as cancer, malaria, diabetes, stomach pains, heart problems among other diseases. This cultivation program is aimed at promoting environmental conservation and nutritious benefits.

We spend a lot on medication which hinders our financial growth. We are therefore encouraged to embrace planting of Moringa trees as a remedy to our health problems and also reduce on hospital bills. I urge everyone to encourage others to plant more Moringa because of its tremendous benefits.

BIKOMYE WANO.
